THE ENGLISH MAILS. LATEST FROM EUROPE.

(From the "Morning Star" 9th April) The Atlantic telegraph brings news of the defeat of the Mexican Liberals and the release of the Emperor Maximilian from Queretaro. There is no particular reason for believing this, while there are many to discredit it. From New York comes also the report that the flight of President Gelfard from Hayti is confirmed.

Ominous rumours circulate in Paris, and there is a general belief that war between France and Prussia in reference to Luxemburg is possible. The Bourse is uneasy, and the newspapers write in a manner calculated to increase the general excitement. Some of the strongest flavoured stories—such as that France had sent an ultimatum to Prussia, that General MacMahon had been sent for to come to Paris, and that a loan of three hundred millions of francs was to be asked for—are denied with a show of authority. The "Etendard" says that Prussia having appealed to the co-signatories of the Treaty of 1839, France has done so likewise, and that the affair has got into the region of diplomacy, where it is likely to stay. Both the "Patrie" and the "France" say that negotiations are still in progress, but the latter adds a few dry sentences,

"The moment may come," says this semi-official paper, when the Government, notwithstanding the sympathy it displays towards Germany, may be compelled to take into account that which the national dignity would impose in the event of an obstinate refusal of these guarantees which are due to our just influence. The responsibility of events would fall upon those who appear to undertake the task of disturbing Europe by unlimited ambition and unbridled pretensions." All this is likely to excite public feeling in France very much.

Meanwhile, there is no lack of feeling in Prussia in reference to the Luxemburg business. A great meeting was held yesterday in Berlin, at which strong resolutions were passed. They were to the effect that Luxemburg must be annexed to Germany as soon as possible, and that any proposal to take the votes of the people of Luxemburg must be rejected at once. All these things point to times of great difficulty and danger for the peace of Europe. It is to be noticed that in the North German Parliament General von Roon, for Prussia, refuses to listen to any suggestions for modifying the management of the army.

We are yet in the dark as to the causes which have led to the resignation of the late Italian Ministry. The King yesterday informed deputations from the Chamber of Deputies and the Senate that the circumstances under which the resignations took place were of a very serious character, and had made it necessary to form a coalition Ministry. Signor Ratazzi had therefore been instructed to form a Cabinet in that spirit. From a subsequent allusion made by the King to finance, it seems likely that it has been at the bottom of the split.

La Presse remarks that,—"The Prussian Cabinet has declined giving any opinion on the question, declaring that the King of Holland would act on his own responsibility, and that the cession once effected, the questions arising out of it would be discussed between Prussia and France. Prussia, then, has not offered opposition to the cession; she only reserves for herself freedom of appreciation and action after it is effected. She thus transforms a question of principle, on which she would be easily beaten, into a question of fact. It is not sufficient that the King of Holland, in the exercise of his right of ownership, should cede the fortress of Luxemburg to be settled between her and France. Prussia is so desirous of treating this question directly with France and with France only, that, as we learn from Count Bismark, she has declined the offer of the King of Holland, who had proposed his good offices with a view to the basis of an understanding between the Cabinet of Paris and Berlin."

Extreme uneasiness prevails in every part of Paris. Last night, up to a late hour, crowds had gathered in the passages eagerly discussing the question of the day—that of the eventuality of a war between France and Prussia. In the faubourgs hundreds of men were heard singing the famous song of Alfred de Musset, which begins thus—

"Nous l'avons vu votre Rhin Allemand Et le tenons dans notre ferre."

The excitement is tremendous. At the Bourse a regular panic took place, owing to rumours of a most sinister character being spread. It was even confidently asserted that Napoleon III. had sent his ultimatum to Berlin. I have just heard that MacMahon has been telegraphed for to Algeria, and that he will, in all probability, have the command of the French forces. The Imperial Guard and all the regiments whose turn it would have been to occupy the Camp de Chalons this year are forthwith to be armed with the breech-loading rifle (model 1866).

To give you an idea of the bitter animosity of the whole nation against Prussia, and of how popular this war, should it break out, will prove, I mention what has just occurred to myself. I was breakfasting at a café on the Boulevards, which was crowded by men of business, all debating the question. But one feeling prevailed; and the landlord, who happened to speak to me, said, "Well, sir, I am a mere commerciant (tradesman); I will subscribe £100 gladly towards the expenses of any war with Prussia."

In to-day's sitting of the Legislative Body, MM. Farre, Lambercht, and Jousseau made several demands for leave to question the Government relative to the Grand Duchy of Luxemburg. The President of the Chamber announced that he had received a decree authorizing the Minister for Foreign Affairs to make a declaration to the Senate and the Legislative Body on that subject.

The Marquis de Monstier then rose and informed the deputies that he had received orders from the Emperor to acquaint them with the circumstances under which the Luxemburg question had arisen, and also with the actual position of the matter. He said—"The Government, guided by the interests of France, which require the preservation of peace, has brought to the consideration of this question thoughts only of conciliation and peace. Nor was it the French Government that raised the discussion of the question. The undecided situation of Luxemburg and Limburg gave rise to diplomatic communications between France and Holland, but these communications had no official character when the Dutch Cabinet consulted Prussia, and when the latter replied by appealing to the Treaty of 1839. The French Government had always considered this question from three points of view—namely, as connected with the free consent of Holland, the loyal examination of the treaties by the Great Powers, and the consultation of the wishes of the inhabitants by means of universal suffrage. The French Government is disposed to examine the question in concert with the Great Powers, and believes, therefore, that peace cannot be disturbed."

This declaration was received with cheers and expressions of various kinds. The President of the Chamber remarked that the demands for permission to question the Government on the subject of Luxemburg would take their usual course, and would be referred to the Bureaux.

M. Thiers made a speech, acknowledging the initiative which the Government had taken by the communication which had been made to the Chamber, but saying that this communication did not furnish a sufficient basis for discussion. He considered that the Government ought to lay before the House the despatches which had been exchanged on the subject.

M. Rouher replied that the very terms of the communication to the Chamber rendered it clear that the question had not yet entered upon any official diplomatic stage. The Government had therefore no despatches to lay on the table. He added:—"If the Bureaux should authorize the interpellations for which leave has been asked, the Government will explain its opinions on the subject in question, but the declaration which it has already made is of a character to satisfy the susceptibilities of the Legislative Body and of public opinion."

After some observations from M. Emile Ollivier and M. Beryer, the demands for the interpellations were referred to the Bureaux. The Etendard of this evening states that Russia and Austria have expressed the same opinion relative to the Treaty of 1839 and Luxemburg question as that already expressed by the English Government.

Great agitation prevailed on the Bourse at the opening, Rentes being then quoted 66f. 65c. A better feeling prevailed in the afternoon, and Rentes were finally quoted 66f. 95c., or 5c. higher than on Saturday. The election in Grenoble for a deputy to the Legislative Body, which took place to-day, resulted in the return of the Government candidate, M. Joliot by 18,800 votes, against 12,400 obtained by his opponent, M. Brillier.

Yesterday the Stock Exchange was in a condition of great excitement, owing to the aspect of foreign politics. All descriptions of securities fell heavily. Consols declined to the extent of 1/2, although at one period the quotation was lower. Italian stock fell £4 10s.

In the House of Lords there was a conversation in reference to the relations between England and Spain. The Earl of Malmesbury appealed to the Marquis of Clanricarde to postpone his motion as to the Tornado until after Easter, on the ground that no reply had yet been received to Lord Stanley's last despatch to the Spanish Government. The Marquis of Clanricarde acceded.

In the House of Commons, Lord Stanley had been questioned on the same matter, and simply stated that he had as yet received no answer to his last despatch. Mr. Darby Griffith was not satisfied, however, and wished to be informed whether it was true that the Mediterranean fleet had left Malta with sealed orders—it was presumed to proceed to the Spanish coast. Lord Stanley replied to this question that if it was meant to ask what were the orders given to commanders of ships in her Majesty's navy, he must decline to answer it. As for the sailing of ships from Malta to the Spanish coast, nothing was more common than that two or three ships should go from Malta to the Spanish coast.

The interest felt in this matter is intense. The most ordinary events are construed to be indicative of war. A contemporary yesterday announced that in consequence of the threatening character of the relations between Spain and England, the sailing of the Rodney for China had been countermanded.

The war fever is raging in Paris, and our correspondent describes the whole nation as being bitter in its animosity against Prussia. The excitement on the Paris Bourse produced a shock—it might be called a panic—on the London Stock Exchange yesterday. Meanwhile we know nothing beyond the fact that France is arming to the teeth. This intelligence is serious enough—so serious that the public generally will share the uneasiness which is felt in monetary circles.

The French Government has thought it necessary to give some explanation in reference to Luxemburg. Yesterday, in the Legislative Body, the Marquis Monstier made a statement which can scarcely fail to have a good effect. In effect he declared that France was simply desirous of conciliation and peace. The question of the cession of Luxemburg had always been considered by the French Government from three points of view, namely, as connected with the free consent of Holland, the loyal examination of the treaties by the Great Powers, and the consultation of the wishes of the inhabitants by universal suffrage. The Marquis concluded as follows:—"The French Government is disposed to examine the question in concert with the Great Powers, and believes, therefore, that peace cannot be disturbed."

It seems that Signor Ratazzi has not been able to form a Ministry. A Florence telegram announces that he has asked the King to be relieved of the duty.

LONDON MONEY-MARKET.

This has been one of the most exciting days which the Stock Exchange has experienced for a very long period. The panic began to be developed on Saturday, more particularly after business hours, when the street was resorted to as a temporary Bourse and hurried transactions entered into at a time when on ordinary occasions the only thing aimed at is to get out of town with rapidity. The alarm continued to spread yesterday, and this morning the dealers flocked into town evidently under the conviction that there would be a scene. The tone of the news from the Continent continued to be waillike, at least it was so interpreted by the mass of operators, the telegram representing the Sunday prices on the Boulevard being specially relied on as indicative of real panic in Paris. Immediately upon the Exchange being opened, a scene of excitement began, every one offering foreign stocks and Consols at greatly lower prices, and the difficulty being to obtain buyers, so eagerly were all aiding for the moment in the work of bearing. In many cases this was the consequence of real alarm on the part of the holders, but in most and perhaps the chief instances it was the coolly-formed design of operators, who after having aided in forcing prices down, would buy in, and then as industriously aid in forcing them back to their former even higher quotations.

The market was undoubtedly in a rare position for taking an impress from any panic feeling. The position of railway securities, which were before so critical, received a damaging blow from the debate in the Commons on Mr. Crawford's well-meant resolution, and all that was required to make a regular stampede among stocks was the probable or near prospect of a great war. This has turned up unexpectedly in the Luxemburg negotiations. The moment it appeared above the horizon it was viewed suspiciously by the men whose daily occupation it is to buy and sell foreign securities, and they felt immense relief when it was announced that the King of Holland had withdrawn from the negotiation. That, however, which was here deemed by many to be the conclusion of the dangerous phase of the question. It became evident on Saturday that the danger had not passed, and the consequence was that to-day we have had combined on the Exchange a number of the most sinister influences which can possibly affect securities.

The want of confidence in some securities, the prospect of a great continental war of a magnitude which must throw into the shade even the gigantic struggle between the German Powers, our own little difficulty with Spain, and the old bugbear of the Russian interference with Turkey united in creating an atmosphere of doubt and panic which nothing could withstand. It would be difficult to estimate what the gross amount of to-day's depreciation would reach, but as all descriptions of securities have been involved, it must be something very great. Consols at one time had fallen £1 per cent, and taking the total of the Consolidated Annuities at the round sum of £400,000,000, this reduction would equal the sum of £4,000,000 upon this class of security alone. They recovered later in the day, the final price showing a fall of about 1/2. In foreign stocks the chief fall was in Italian, which receded £4 10s. The Italian nation does not seem to be particularly involved in the quarrel; on the contrary, since she has been an ally of both France and Prussia, the debtor of the one for Lombardy and of the other for Venetia, she must continue in a neutral position. Her own internal difficulties, however, came into greater prominence on account of the condition of the market, and precipitated the fall. As will be seen from a notice below, one outside dealer at least has been compelled to succumb. The turning point of the day it was evident would be the arrival of the French prices. If the decline in Rentes had continued the panic here would have been intensified; but as the Paris prices in the afternoon became better, and the strong excitement of the morning had exhausted itself, there was a disposition to rally. The final prices were the best of the day. The dealers in Mark-lane managed to raise the price of wheat from 1s. to 2s. per qr. on the news.

There was a fair demand for money at the Bank, and a good demand outside. The market for the greater part of the day was interrupted by the exciting events on the Stock Exchange. There were some considerable payments to be made to-day, but provision had been well made beforehand.

There were no bullion operations at the Bank to-day. The Royal Mail steam ship Africa, from New-York, has brought £2,120, and the steamer Union, from New York, £2,702 in specie.

Consols closed at 90 1/4 for money, and 90 1/2 for 10th of April, showing a decline of 1/2 in the former and 1/2 in the latter from Saturday's quotation. New and Reduced Three per Cent, are lower. Bank Stock advanced 2 to 3 per cent.

EDITOR'S TABLE.

The Arno arrived yesterday morning. She encountered dreadful weather coming from Rio Janeiro, three days of continuous gales and heavy sea, during which she behaved admirably and showed her excellent sea-going qualities. One of the officers states that during twenty years at sea he never before saw such weather. Among the passengers are Baron and Baroness Bourgenet, en route for Paraguay, the Baron being named French Consul-General at Asunción, in room of Mr. Cochelet. Mr. Frank, Argentine Secretary of Legation at Rio, has also arrived on leave of absence for benefit of his health.

In the last trip of the Arno to Rio the boatswain died of cholera shortly after leaving Montevideo. Fortunately it did not break out among the passengers, who were over 150 in number.

Our readers will be glad to learn that Mr. Consul Parish and family are expected by next mail from Europe; Mr. Lumb, Capt. Curlew, and some other old friends are also expected. Mr. Smyth, C.E., formerly of Peto & Bett's staff, has returned to this country: it will be remembered that on revisiting his native city, Dublin, he was arrested by the authorities on no other suspicion than because he arrived from America and had two revolvers in his luggage.

We have received a most interesting letter from M. Palliere upon the opening of the Paris Exhibition, which we have to hold over till to-morrow. Mr. Francis Clare Ford, late Chargé d'affaires in this city, has been removed from Copenhagen to Washington; as this may be considered a promotion, we are glad to see Mr. Ford's talents duly noticed.

Dr. Gutierrez of the Nacion Argentina returned yesterday from his expedition to the provinces: we hope he is none the worse for his sufferings at Cordoba.

To-morrow we shall reproduce an important article of the Nacion on the railways of B. Ayres.

Our brother-editor, who came up yesterday from M. Video, feels bound to avail himself of this opportunity to testify to the great comfort of the Arno, and return his best thanks to Captain Bruce and his officers.

The Chilean steamer Peru arrived yesterday morning in Montevideo. She leaves that port to-night for England direct, and it is expected will beat the French packet by about one week. Several parties sent their letters down last night to catch this steamer.

The intensely cold nights we have now have given a great impetus to the coal trade, as also to the coke, which is selling at the Gas-house at $450 per ton, cash, and on time at $500.

There was great talk in town yesterday about Dr. Dick's will. We understand that deceased died worth over twenty millions of dollars. He left one hundred thousand dollars to the British Hospital, and a like sum to the Scotch schools. The bulk of his property he left to relatives in Scotland.

The editorial staff of the Standard is again complete. Our brother editor returned in the packet yesterday.

Respecting the Southern Cemetery there is still a very animated discussion going on in the papers. All the neighbors of the locality cry out against the abuse of starting a cemetery right under their very nose. Petitions have been sent in to the Municipality, praying them to reconsider the question, and to establish the cemetery some squares further out.

The last mails from the Interior give a rather unfavorable picture of the attitude of Chile. It appears, according to our Mendoza colleague, that the Chilean Government extended every hospitality to the runaway leaders of the late revolution, but as this rests merely on the authority of a Provincial paper, we doubt if it deserves much attention.

Yesterday the busiest man in town was our friend, Mr. Price, who labored unceasingly to get off the Tevere with a supplemental mail.

The telegram published on Monday, respecting the United States intervention, rests solely on the authority of a special sheet published in Europe for the River Plate Mail, called the Mala de Europa. It is more than probable, however, that if there is any truth in the story Major-Gen. Asboth, the Resident Minister here, will receive despatches to that import.

The Publico, we notice, has again changed editors, Mr. Quirno having retired from the editorial chair. The name of his successor we have not yet heard.

The statement that the French packet took away one hundred and sixty thousand pounds sterling in gold, is, we apprehend, a great exaggeration. We inquired on the Bolsa, and learned that no such sum has been exported.

The Presidential election is now the absorbing topic of the day, and our colleagues have taken the subject up as warmly as if it were to come off to-morrow; but a reference to dates will show how premature is the question. President Mitre's term of office expires on the 12th of October 1868. The election of electors to name a President and Vice-President will be held on Jan. 1868. Congress will analyze the legality of the proceedings on September 12th, and one month later they will be installed in office. It is therefore clear that for more than a year to come no real movement can be made in the matter; such is the Constitution of the country, and no matter how much we may argue the point, the fact is the same, and we should strongly recommend our neighbors to concentrate their abilities on the removal of abuses and the amelioration of the city, instead of thus diving into the future to find food for party discussion.

The Municipality have issued a report of their operations during the past year. The work is tolerably compiled, each subject being treated in a separate chapter, and is accompanied by a balance sheet. We had intended reviewing this blue book, but find it so long, so comprehensive, and so open to comment, that we prefer following the course before us, and shall therefore take each part up at leisure. The first page of this work is dedicated by our city fathers to the 'Old Man's Hospital,' which we find to stand us in the year on $1,508,189 mpc. As a set off to these remarkably round figures, we are presented with a long list of foreigners, many of whom we are assured being possessed of sufficient private funds to support themselves, prefer nevertheless to live there on public charity. The second reason seems much more likely, and is deserving of notice, viz: the large number of military sufferers, a both rank and file, in all 514, herein accommodated previous to the opening of the military hospital in the Retiro barracks; of late these cases have been few, and we may hope soon to have the item entirely erased from the book. The expenses of this establishment would be considerably magnified by nurses and servants wages, were it not for the gratuitous attendance of the Sisters of Charity. These ladies are most zealous in their care, and have never failed in their charitable mission, although greatly reduced in numbers by the departure of several for the hospitals of Corrientes. The total number admitted in the year was 2,522 of whom half were foreigners. Of this number 371 died, 1380 left cured, and 301 still remained in the establishment.

The Italian hospital is now in the hands of the Government. As this institution has been so often rented and re-rented, we are inclined to believe that the Italians themselves find no use for an hospital, and the place might therefore be just as well sold to the Government.

Sunday was the feast of the Patronio of St. Joseph, the patron Saint of Galicia. Some thousands were met in the Plaza last night to witness the procession, formed on the occasion by the Gallego residents in this town. Considering the times, the affair was fairly got up. As usual on such occasions there was a brass band present, but the airs it played, if not profane, were not the most musical.

In commemoration of the cessation of the cholera the Plaza Concepcion was illuminated on Sunday night. Considering that the whole display consisted of a few chinese candles, half a dozen rockets, a burning log or two, and wretched music, it is astonishing the number of people that gathered together on the occasion. Where persons will be amused, this shows how little is required.

The Boletin del Dia of yesterday, speaking of the equestrian feats of our sailors, thinks they must be under the special protection of Providence. These sons of Neptune are really extraordinary characters, as the Boletin remarks, their "rides are short and sweet." We saw one the other day accompanied by half-a-dozen others ride full tilt around the Plaza Retiro, with his face tail-ward, to the great amusement of his friends, himself and the spectators.

We are sorry to announce that Gen. Asboth, the American Minister, has been very unwell. According to the latest reports, however, the gallant gentleman is improving, and we hope to see him ere long convalescent.

Passing by the Policia on Monday we saw a great cask of what we think was treacle, with its bottom staved in, the molasses running down the street. Two or three policemen, aided by others, were busy bottling it. Their countenances beamed with mellifluous smiles.

Mr. Cranwell's latest importation is the "Aurora bubble;" it reminds us of the great South Sea bubble. To ladies who would amuse their children and themselves we recommend the Aurora bubble as an excellent pastime.

We take from the Telegrafo the following account of the late disaster in the harbour of Montevideo:—"The master and four of the crew of the British barque Julianna, left the mole at Montevideo in one of the ship's boats; when about half way to the barque they dropped two oars, and it was found impossible to make way against the strong head wind. They were therefore obliged to put back to Punta Brava, where they were received by the coast guard: here they passed the night, and next morning started off a-fresh. The weather was mild, the wind having abated during the night, and they soon regained land without further incident. The exposed state of the port which is perfectly unprotected against the 'pampero' should render mariners very cautious about venturing in such cockle-shells, and we hope this will serve as an example.

ROSARIO.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

May 11, 1867. The cholera has almost entirely disappeared from our city, although we have still, every now and then, a violent case. Since the visceras of the town decided that there was no further obligation of attending on the poor, there have been about fifteen cases that, with nobody to see after them, all ended fatally. But fifteen human beings more or less, in a densely populated country like this, is a mere 'bagatelle,' not worth talking about.

The circumstances attending the death of poor Comandante Prado, in Melinco, are worthy of being noted down. Prado had a fine estancia on the frontier of B. Ayres, on which he had spent a deal of time and money, and his partner in the business was Mr. Mariano Amigo, of Rosario. The latter gentleman received a letter from Prado by a 'chacaso,' requesting his immediate presence in the estancia, as the writer was 'sick unto death.' Mr. Amigo immediately mounted on horseback, and leaving orders for a medical man to follow in a carriage, started off with a peon. On arriving he found the Colonel in bed, perfectly sensible, and with no perceptible change in his countenance. Prado at once began giving his friend a most minute account of the business, with directions how to carry it on, describing the character of the different peons, and who to keep on the estancia and who to discard; directions as to his three little children, to whom he requested his partner in future to be a father. He ended by saying that he had only an hour or two to live, and that under his pillow was a letter that he had written in bed, addressed to Amigo, with full instructions in reference to everything. Mr. Amigo was completely thunderstruck to witness such calmness and courage, as well as strength of mind and body, in a man stricken down by a deadly disease, and perfectly conscious of an immediate dissolution. He himself was far more affected than was the dying man. Recovering himself, however, he said—"I am astonished, my dear friend, to witness your great courage; but although it is satisfactory to see that you are meeting your fate like a brave man, and even in your last moments are more solicitous for the interests of others than your own, I must beg now that you discard all mundane thoughts and prepare for the other world." The Colonel smiled and said—"I am perfectly willing, but I am afraid I have forgotten all my prayers, although I don't think I have been a bad man."

Mr. Amigo fetched a crucifix and placed it in the hands of his poor friend, who devoutly kissed the emblem of our redemption, and kneeling down on one side of the bed, with the peon he had brought with him, on the other side, the worthy man made Prado repeat the confession of faith and other prayers.

In a little while Prado began to change, and he commenced vomiting. At this moment the peon, raising his head from the bed, exclaimed—"Patron, I am sick."

"Retire and go to bed, and get some one to attend to you," answered his master; and continued his cares on the dying man.

In half an hour another peon came precipitately into the room, crying out—"Señor Amigo, your peon is dead."

"Take the body away and bury it," replied D. Mariano, without moving his head from the pillow of the poor Colonel, to whom he was now addressing the last few consolatory words of religion and friendship.

Colonel Prado died about three hours after the arrival of Mr. Amigo, and in the full and calm possession of all his faculties up to the very last moment; and, strange as it may appear, there was little if any change in his handsome countenance. The mother of his children, in the meantime, was sick upstairs of the same disease, but
